THE National Republican Convention is in session at Minneapolis.

LET every Democrat in Ohio county attend the Primary Election next Saturday.

The county roads in many places are almost or quite impassable, and yet no effort is being made by anybody to secure their improvement.

THE last Grand Jury or the late Law and Order Club of Hartford, one was not only derelict but criminally negligent of its duty. The one was sworn to do its duty and from the class of men who composed it, we take it such was done. About the other we know nothing, having not lately heard from it.

MR. ED. P. CROWE, formerly of this place, of the Tide-Times, of Edgelyville, is now engaged in connection with his brother, Rev. J. M. Crowe, in the publication of the Methodist Advocate, a bright church paper of Sikeston, Mo. Mr. Crowe is a bright young editor and the HERALD wishes him success in his new field.

LYON county is rapidly pulling herself out of the financial hole into which she was thrown by a long delay in the payment of her railroad debt. There have already been paid about $15,000 of the $25,000 recently agreed upon by compromise with the bondholders, and the people say they will hasten to pay the amount in full and remove the incubus which has so long hindered their prosperity.

THE Owensboro papers speak of Mrs. Celia Eppingshausen Bailey, of a traveling concert company, as the lady whom the college there "has engaged to sing at the concert."

AT Owensboro, where we see a sure enough college commencement and that too in which home talent and the rich voices and genius of our own folks please and delight their audiences, she should take a week off some June time and come to Hartford, where commencement is to be seen and singing to be heard.

JIM P. MILLER was in Hartford Monday, but he was not heard to explain to anybody his anomalous political position. The aspect of an aggressive Protectionist running for office on a Free Trade platform is strongly indicative of the miserable degradation in politics of which we hear so much complaint. No longer ruled by principle, he confronts their constituents with the bare assertion "We want the offices," and make no pretense to candor or sincerity. We do not believe the country has fallen so low as to deem this course honorable.

AT Owensboro last week, Dan Jones, who had once been charged with murder, was arrested and lodged in jail, charged with larceny. The jailer turned him in a corridor with two prisoners—Bryant Lipscomb and Ed Elam—who were confined there, one of them protesting against being locked up with a crazy man. His protest was unheeded, however, and after they had been some hours together, Jones slipped up behind Lipscomb and with no provocation and without warning, grabbed him around the neck and began to plunge a small knife into his face. Elam came to the rescue and was also cut. Jones was finally overpowered and now the jailer of Davis county ought to be given a job running his saloon and a man put in charge of the jail who will give some attention to the unfortunate men and women placed in his keeping.

THE political world was thrown into violent agitation Saturday by the retirement of Secretary of State, James G. Blaine from Mr. Harrison's cabinet. The note conveying his resignation was a curt one, and evoked from Mr. Harrison an equally curt reply. Coming as it does right upon the eve of the National Republican Convention, which is now in session at Minneapolis, the resignation of Mr. Blaine is taken by many to mean that he is a candidate for the Presidency.

"Will the earth cease to revolve?" asks the St. Louis Republic. Well, that may depend largely upon whether or not its revolutions should be come in any way distasteful to the present Kentucky Legislature which, while costing the people nearly $1,000 per day, has recently spent one day "resolving" against a newspaper and the most of another resolving that from some source not quite clearly set out and through some means not quite plainly described, "The people should have relief." The truth is that the first demand of the people is to be relieved of a body of incompetent men who have undertaken to make laws for the great State of Kentucky.

One of two things is true—either Ohio county has just had a corrupt or incompetent Grand Jury or the people who a few weeks ago were so vociferous in their denunciations of Hartford and Ohio county are wantonly recreant or were ignorantly slanderous when engaged in such wholesale accusations and measures less threats. If half the immorality which was some weeks ago set down to Hartford's credit, existed here, and the men who were complaining were sincere about it, they are either too ignorant to locate the offenders or they have been reached by some influence which prevented their telling the Grand Jury what they knew. How about this strange denouement, anyhow?

REFORMS AND REFORMERS.

In seeking the services of men, people, like an individual, should be governed by reason. Why should a county or a State hire at a big salary a man who is totally incompetent to assume the work in hand? It is no matter how much a man may talk reform if, when it comes his turn to serve his employers, he refuses or for any reason fails to do what they demand.

There has been much talking by some of our people about various "reforms." They propose to reform almost everything except the things which they have in their power to reform. They talk at length about lightening taxation, and yet they go on year after year meeting and hearing a budget, compared with which all other taxes are insignificant. We agree that our tariff tax is an onerous burden upon our people, but there is another burden of a different form which exacts more and is not supported by even a false promise of return. Because it is not taken from our citizens in a way to be counted in so many dollars and cents, they tolerate this burden which, if measured in actual expenditure and loss, would be appalling. We are now enjoying the service of a "reform" legislator, who has it in his power to provide for us such a system of Public Roads as will remove much of the burden of impassable highways under which our people suffer. His constituents of all shades of political faith are clamoring for such reform, and yet in the face of it all he is as silent as an oyster and as inactive as a sassafras stump in an abandoned pasture—where we might add, about as useful as reform in our road system or will they and their incompetent at Frankfurt sit by and see the people suffer when they have power to give the coveted relief?

MISS MAGGIE D. WILLIAMS. In the above picture, many of our readers will recognize the face of one of our county's best women. Many a little boy and girl will discover the familiar figure that has presided with so much quiet solicitude over the school room through several recent years. The HERALD's friend and the children's friend, no lady in Ohio county has done more to promote the advancement of our educational interests than has Miss Maggie Williams, of Abbeville, who as "Gracie" has endeared herself to every reader of the HERALD. Miss Williams belongs to the class of active and progressive teachers who are rapidly bringing about a revolution in our school interests. Talented and industrious, she has acquired for herself a splendid education, while contributing in no large degree to the culture and advancement of the county and now she is well known in literary circles outside her native Ohio, by her portrait and a sketch of her work having been published in the World's Fair entitled "Local and National Poets of America."

EXPENSIVE LAW-MAKING.

Kentucky, With the Burden of an Unlimited Legislature Added to a Constitution Convention, is About Bankrupt. No State Dollars Yet—A Proposed General Road Law—World's Fair Matters.

Special Correspondence of the HERALD.

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 4, 1892. The State is sadly in need of funds to carry on business, and the Legislature realizing the necessity for more money has fixed the tax rate back at the old figures, 47 cents on each hundred dollars worth of property. The Republicans in the Senate to a man voted against raising the tax rate 5 cents. The bill had an emergency clause and became operative at once. The Auditor has prepared circular letters to be sent to the sheriffs notifying them of this change and admonishing them to be exceedingly diligent in collecting taxes. The report of the Treasurer for May 31 shows a deficit in the general expenditure fund of $197,700.63. The balance in the Treasury for the same date is $201,490.06, this amount being balance to the Sinking Fund and School Fund. There is still funds on hand to pay the per diem of the General Assembly and other State expenses, but the general expenditure fund will have to refrain to the other funds what it borrows, hence the urgency in collecting this year's taxes. The sheriffs and the people have to settle promptly this time.

Dr. James has succeeded in getting the local option law for Milwaukee county repealed. The Senate and House are still at loggerheads over the judicial reorganizing bill and have been compelled to appoint a conference committee to settle these differences. If the Legislature does all it should before taking a summer recess, it will not get away before from its present position.

It begins to look like this Legislature would devote a little attention to a common road law. Mr. Dickson has gone so far as to offer a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee to investigate the road system of other States with a view to the possible improvement of the road system of Kentucky. As this Legislature is unlimited as to time, there will be no hurry as to this very important matter. The pictures have been received from Pennsylvania, and the visitors who brought them have returned to their homes. They were royally entertained by the State's expense and considered themselves as highly pleased with the State and her people.

Lexington failed to use the $15,000 of the World's Fair appropriation consequent to a State Centennial, consequently a resolution has been offered in the House to carry this amount back into the general expenditure fund of the State, leaving $85,000 to the credit of the World's Fair Commissioners.

Dr. James is about to promote with his measure providing for two more lady Commissioners for the World's Fair.

The Legislature is 158 days old to-day and the session just fairly begun. Under the strictures of the new Constitution a session will last only 120 days, and it is not probable that the Legislature will meet, appoint its committees, elect its officers, draw its $300 per member and adjourn.
